I was born in St Agnes, Cornwall and after moving to Brixton in 1951, I lived here until I was 9 years old.

I finally left Devon in 1967, moving to Scotland. I lived there for over 30 years where I worked as a researcher for BBC Radio for many years.

I returned back home to Devon 19 years ago and have been living in Brixton parish for the last 13 years.

I have three grown up children. My two daughters live in Scotland, but my son and his four children live in the Plymouth area.

I am really looking forward to becoming a member of BPC and I am very happy to be involved in the local community and to be lucky enough to live in such a beautiful place,
